Capstone Reflection

The overall course helped me through my job applications. It made me show what I can do and present it digitally and professionally. It eventually helped me land an internship for this summer. I rediscovered my HTML skills from this class so I made an HTML resume with it. For my final Capstone project I'm thinking of making a live air traffic radar/chart for Little Rock. I found some good and free APIs to piggyback off. The problem I found so far was making my project analysis and chart. Mostly because I'm not sure what to put in there. I am also indecisive and it's hard for me to draft even a few examples. I still need to relearn more Java and research to make my final idea. Since I'm doing this project by myself, there could be an issue of getting overwhelmed but for now I'm confident. I'm looking forward to finishing this so I can graduate by fall.
